

The Reign of Evil and Violence Will Last as Long as Allah Wills!

News:

Early parliamentary elections were held in Kyrgyzstan. On 13 December, IA 24.kg reported: "The Central Commission for Elections and Referendums has summarised the results of the extraordinary elections of deputies to the Zhogorku Kenesh of the Kyrgyz Republic, which took place on 30 November 2025.

Early parliamentary elections were scheduled by presidential decree on 30 September 2025. According to the Central Election Commission, the election campaign and the voting process itself were conducted in strict accordance with the requirements of the law".

Comment:

The parliament's term was due to end in November 2026, but the president dissolved parliament after pro-presidential MPs initiated early parliamentary elections on 25 September. The elections took place against the backdrop of the detention of opposition figures. On 24 November, members of the opposition Social Democratic Party Temirlan Sultanbekov and Ermek Ermatov, the son of former president Kadyrbek Atambayev, and others were detained. Zhaparov carried out similar manoeuvres to remove undesirable MPs from parliament in 2021.

According to the election results, a relative of President S. Zhaparov and the Head of the Special Services K. Tashiev received the most votes. Earlier, in October, the president's youngest son, Nurdoolut Nurgozhoev, became the founder of a new bank. In an interview with journalists, when asked about his son's involvement in the opening of the new bank, President Zhaparov replied: "We have nothing to hide from the people. First of all, I have been in power for more than five years. During this time, I have not involved any members of my family, not even my brothers, in state affairs. I believe that one politician per family is enough..."

S. Zhaparov is preparing for the upcoming elections in 2027, and to this end, he is, on the one hand, purging the political arena of all undesirable opposition figures. On the other hand, by promoting his son to financial structures, he is securing support for himself to control the country from an economic standpoint. The security forces are controlled by Zhaparov's friend and ally, Kamchybek Tashiev, head of the State Committee for National Security.

In early November, S. Zhaparov stated on his social media accounts: "There will be no coups. Firstly, we will not give any reason for a coup. Secondly, the former weak state no longer exists. The state is now strong. Thirdly, the people already know well who to support and who should be in power. From now on, you will only see coups in your dreams. Looting, robbery, greedy pursuit of profit and attempts, as before, to grab positions and get rich after the coup - let all this remain only in your dreams." These actions and statements by the president mean that S. Zhaparov intends to remain firmly in office for a long time.

Everyone who comes to power in the Central Asian republics strives to put down deep roots and hold on to power until their death, and then leave this power to their children as an inheritance. The President of Turkmenistan has transferred power to his son. The President of Tajikistan has put down such deep roots that his relatives occupy positions in virtually all structures of power, and he has groomed his son to take his place. The situation is similar with former Kazakh President Nazarbayev. All financial spheres in Kazakhstan are controlled by Nazarbayev's children and relatives. The President of Uzbekistan, Shavkat Mirziyoyev, appointed his daughter as head of the presidential administration, and Saida Mirziyoyeva is practically the second most powerful person in the country.

So-called independent countries with legal institutions have become a mere formality in the modern world. All these loud declarations about legal societies, the rule of law and human rights are simply a mirage that does not exist in reality.

In reality, we are witnessing the reign of evil and violence, as our beloved Prophet Muhammad (saw) told us. Abu Daud Tayalisi narrated from Huzaifa that the Messenger of Allah (saw) said: «تُمْ تَكُونُ مُلْكًا جَبْرِيَّةً فَتَكُونُ مَا شَاءَ اللَّهُ أَنْ تَكُونَ» “Then there will be a period of evil and violence, which will last as long as Allah wills...”

Today, it is not those who are on the side of truth who are strong. Today, it is those who are in power, who have money and an army, who are strong. These tyrants rule by force, forcing the people to submit to their injustice and evil, enriching themselves at the expense of the people's resources, and imprisoning those who call for Islam and righteousness. The people are exhausted by the despotism of their rulers, and there is no one to stand by the people, defend them and deliver them from their suffering.

But this will not last forever. The rule of tyrants will soon come to an end. Our beloved Prophet Muhammad (saw) continued the hadith and told us that: «تُمْ تَكُونُ مُلْكًا جَبْرِيَّةً فَتَكُونُ مَا شَاءَ اللَّهُ أَنْ تَكُونَ تُمْ يَرْفَعُهَا إِذَا شَاءَ أَنْ يَرْفَعَهَا تُمْ تَكُونُ خِلَافَةً عَلَى مِنْهَاجِ النَّبِيِّ تُمْ سَكَتَ» “...Then there will be a period of evil and violence, which will last as long as Allah wills. Then, when Allah wills, it will end. Then there will be a period of the Khilafah (Caliphate) based on the method of Prophethood,” and then he fell silent”.
