What Prompted the UAE to Invite Moin Abdul Malik for its Visit?

(Translated)

On Monday, 10/06/2019, the Prime Minister of Yemen's ruling regime in Aden, Moin Abdul Malik, paid an official visit to the UAE for several days at the invitation of the ruling regime in the UAE. This is Moin Abdul Malik's first visit to Abu Dhabi, which was not welcoming in reception to him. He was received by Reem Al Hashimi, the UAE Minister of State. Riyadh stands behind his appointment as Prime Minister and from there he headed to Aden in October 2018. What are the objectives that the UAE wants to achieve from inviting Moin Abdul Malik for its visit?

The human rights file stands in the forefront of files of interest to the UAE, especially after the formation of a joint committee in Aden - days before the visit of Moin Abdul Malik to Abu Dhabi - to investigate human rights violations in various parts of southern Yemen, based on accusations made against the UAE by Human Rights Watch organization of operating a network of secret prisons in southern Yemen through the local security belt forces, which practice torture in informal detention centers and are not linked to the prime minister.

If we look at the role of the UAE in Yemen since its entry into Aden in August 2015, it came to remove the Houthis from Aden, liquidating the southern movement, the American wing in its stronghold of Mansoura, replacing the Supreme Council of the Southern Revolutionary Movement headed by Hassan Baum, and pursuing him in Hadramout, and the establishment and support of the Transitional Council of the Southern Movement, headed by Idruse Zubaidi, the visitor to London who addressed the British House of Commons. It is the rival of the work of the Al-Saud regime in southern Yemen, which means the disruption of America's work in southern Yemen and its liquidation, after America was able to introduce the Houthis into Sana'a, and external support for them.

Yemen will remain like other Muslim countries, a centre to the international struggle between America and Britain, until its people wake up and save themselves by avoiding the international conflicts and returning to Islam to work for establishing the second Khilafah Rashida (Righteous Caliphate) state that Hizb ut Tahrir - the leader that does not lie to its people - is working for its establishment. Allah (swt) says:

﴿يَا أَيُّهَا الَّذِينَ آمَنُوا اسْتَجِيبُوا لِلَّهِ وَلِلرَّسُولِ إِذَا دَعَاكُمْ لِمَا يُحْيِيكُمْ﴾

“O you who have believed, respond to Allah and to the Messenger when he calls you to that which gives you life” [Al-Anfal: 24]
